While Didsbury is advancing rapidly, still there are some things badly needed, and a good half of these are the most important items at present, as there is no suitable place for holding meetings.

Didsbury's sixth monthly street fair and horse show will be held on Tuesday, April 25th.

BUSY BEES MEET AT HOME OF MRS. GOURDINE

The Busy Bees met at the home of Mrs. Gourdine on April 17th with five members present and one visitor. Sewing and knitting was returned and more given out.

The Bees have bought quilt pieces for another quilt top and these were given out for piecing another quilt top.

The afternoon was spent in tying a large quilt.

Lunch was served by the hostess, and a pleasant afternoon ended.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Jahnke on April 25th.

C. J. DAVIDSON OF THREE HILLS TO BE LIBERAL CANDIDATE

Nominated at Red Deer Convention on April 18

Claude J. Davidson, 40-year-old mayor of Three Hills, was chosen at a nominating convention at Red Deer last Wednesday afternoon as Liberal candidate in the Red Deer federal constituency to contest the Dominion general election June 11.

More than 100 delegates attended. W.H. Davies, president of the Constituency Association was chairman, and delegates were present from all parts of the riding to make the gathering one of the largest attended political nominating conventions held in Red Deer in recent years.

Two speakers addressed the convention. W.H. Clapperton, of Calgary, praised the Duchertown Oaks conference, Co-operation among the nations of the world was needed, he felt, if peace was to be won and maintained. The work of the Liberal government at Ottawa during the past five years was the subject of the address given by Harold W. Riley Jr., of Calgary. The government's non-employment insurance, farm loans and the Housing Act, he said.

Liberal organizer E. Fair also addressed the meeting, speaking in an optimistic view of the government's plans for the future and the support that people in this province were showing for the government.

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution expressing confidence in the Mackenzie King administration. Another resolution asked for revision of the order-in-council to pay pensions of 500 per month to married men who served in both the first World War and the present war, with $40 per month to single men who had served in both wars.

W.H. Davies was re-elected president of the Federal Constituency Liberal Association, with C.E. Reiber, also of Didsbury, again named secretary.

The candidate, C.J. Davidson, is a native of New Brunswick, where he was born 40 years ago. He came to Three Hills 30 years ago and has lived there since. During his long residence in Three Hills Mr. Davidson has taken an active part in the life of the community. He served for years on the Three Hills Council and is now in his second term as mayor of the town.

At present Mr. Davidson is in the real estate business but during his long residence in the district has been school teacher, news agent, and dealer and storekeeper. He is married and has three children.

ENGLISH-SINCLAIR

A quiet wedding took place in Edmonton Saturday, April 14th at 3 p.m. when Vera M., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Sinclair of Didsbury became the bride of John W. English of Calgary, the Rev. Cunningham officiating.

The bride wore a floor-length wedding gown of white satin and chapel veil. Her going away suit was dark blue with pale rose sheer blouse and matching hat and gloves.

After spending a short honeymoon in Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. English will return to Calgary and will reside at 1511 - 20th Ave. N.W.

COMPOSITE HIGH SCHOOL UNDER CONSIDERATION

Representatives of Olds School Division, Red Deer School Division, Olds, Didsbury and Innisfail met at the Olds School on Tuesday for the purpose of discussing the establishment of a Composite High School to serve the district.

The Department of Education of Alberta had agreed to establish such a school at Didsbury, but it was found that the cost was going to be too high for Didsbury to carry alone.

It was felt by many that the Bowden airport, being centrally located and with certain of the buildings being adequate to the project, would be the best place to set up such a school and that the cost would be much less than if a new school had to be built.

Under the government plan the district would be required to bear 50 per cent of the cost. This it was thought would bear too heavily upon the ratepayers the several districts. The Department of Education carries the full cost of the School of Agriculture and it was thought that at least until such time as the school was fully established and a proven success the Government should bear all the cost. A committee of Messrs. Stonehouse, Red Deer; Davies, Strath, Olds; Kendrick, Didsbury, and Inspectors Thorne and Crispo were appointed to interview the Government.—Innisfail Press.

NOTES FROM THE WEST

The Elkton Willing Workers met at the home of Mrs. M. Boyce Wednesday last. A comforter was tied for the Red Cross and sewing turned in. The next meeting will be Wednesday, May 10th at the home of Mrs. F. Bert.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Haener is on the sick list again and wish her a speedy recovery.

Although the dirt roads are now drying up, many fields are still too wet for farming.

Mrs. J. Jacobson who has been visiting in Victoria, is now in Vancouver and spent a short time with Mrs. A. Orde. She reports a very late spring in B.C.

BOARD OF TRADE DISSOLVED

At a meeting held in the Royal Bank Thursday night it was decided to dissolve the Didsbury and District Board of Trade, in favor of the active Lions Club. The balance in the treasury was donated to the Hospital Board to go towards furnishing the new hospital.

Editor's Note—It seems a shame that the Didsbury Board of Trade was dissolved. There is no organization that can properly take its place. The newly formed Lions Club can and is doing good work as a service club, and there is a place for this organization in our midst. However, when it comes down to the point when Didsbury needs a road, an industry or some other favor from outside interests, the Board of Trade would be the most likely to succeed.

Even in a dormant stage, the Board of Trade could be called on in an emergency to represent our town and district on important matters.

EIGHTH VICTORY LOAN DRIVE GETS UNDER WAY MONDAY

Quota for Didsbury and District set at $100,000

The drive for Bonds in the Eighth Victory Loan got under way in the Didsbury district on Monday morning and active campaigning is now going on in an endeavor to contact as many farmers as possible before the spring work commences.

Official canvassers are Messrs. E. Cuswale, Geo. A. Youngs, W.W. Gilre and J.D. Thomas.

Members of the local War Finance Committee are: C.E. Reiber, Unit Organizer; H. Morrison, President; H. Alder, Vice-President; Geo. Law, Public Relations.

The quota for Didsbury and district in the Eighth Victory Loan has been set at $100,000 and the local committee feels that if everyone will buy the bonds they can afford there will be no difficulty experienced in meeting the objective.

You are urged to buy all the Bonds you can. The money is needed to bring this war to a successful conclusion and to provide for our boys and girls returning to civilian life. You are only asked to lend your money—and you are paid 3 per cent interest on the investment.

Several units in Alberta have already reached their quota, and we do not want Didsbury to lag too far behind in the drive, so buy your bonds immediately. If the canvasser doesn't call this week, drop in at the office of the Unit Organizer, C.E. Reiber, or at the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, and make your application. The main consideration is to get your application as quickly as possible, and for as much as possible.

BERGEN NEWS NOTES

The road meeting for Tip, 31-E 5 & 6, was held in the Bergen school house Saturday, April 11. A. Moore was retained as road foreman for another year.

Eric Lyle is home on a short furlough. He is stationed in Calgary at the present time.

Mrs. Anne Moll of Margrath is the new teacher at Eldwold School.

Mrs. Lyle was in Calgary visiting her sister, Olive Johnson, last week.

STANLEY F. BROWN BURIED AT VICTORIA

Funeral services for Mr. Stanley F. Brown of Victoria, B.C., and formerly of Didsbury, were held in St. John's Church April 17th at 2 p.m. Burial took place in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Mr. Brown came to Didsbury 28 years ago from England. He served four years in the First Great War and was an active member of the Didsbury Branch of the Legion, and of King Brian Lodge A.P. & A.M., before moving to Victoria about a year ago. Surviving are his wife at Victoria; two daughters, Mrs. Anne Herbert of Victoria and Mrs. Neville Polkington of Calgary; and Mr. Wm. Brown of Chilliwack, B.C.

ANNUAL MEETING OF DAIRY CALF CLUB HELD APRIL 21

John Parker Elected President of Organization

The annual meeting of the Didsbury Dairy Calf Club was held at the home of Mr. S. Sinclair on Saturday, April 21st. There was a good attendance, about twenty-five, including adults.

Mr. Hugh McPhail, the supervisor, arranged classes in cows, heifers and beef calves for judging. After the members had completed the written judging, Patsy Gibbs and Marjorie Bruce gave oral reasons for placing the calves. Jeanette Worrall and Marjorie Clarke placed the cows and Jimmie Clarke and John Parker judged the calves, giving their reasons orally. Then Mr. C.W. Gordon, instructor in Animal Husbandry at Olds School of Agriculture, told the members how he considered the animals should be placed.

Mr. McPhail explained the work of the year and called upon Marjorie Clarke and Marjorie Bruce to tell of their trip to Edmonton for this elimination contests for the National judging at Toronto, when they were second highest in the province.

Patsy Gibbs and John Parker described their trip to the Dairy Convention when they had been in charge of a farm and Patsy came third in individual judging for the province.

Marjorie Bruce was in the chair and Marjorie Clarke, the secretary, read the financial statement for the year, which showed a comfortable balance.

Election of officers took place, as follows:

President, John Parker, Vice-President, Patsy Gibbs, Secretary, Jeanette Worrall, Adult Committee, Leader, Tom Morris, Directors, E. Clarke, B. Parker and C.W. Gibbs.

The members were shown through the model dairy barn and then Mrs. Swain and her daughter served a delicious lunch. On behalf of the members Marjorie Bruce thanked them for the profitable day.

The next meeting will be held at Claude Webb's farm west of Aerna on May 26th, when transportation will be arranged for members.

FISHERIES VALUES DOUBLED

In point of time fishing may be systematically prosecuted in Canada. To Calcutt must be ascribed the honor of having discovered in 1497 the cod banks. Newfoundland, when first sighted the mainland of North America.

The industry has grown with the passing years. In 1870 the value of the fisheries production was $6,577,000 and increasing in 1942 to $15,110,000.

Besides supplying the domestic market with fish products, the industry contributes materially to the export trade of Canada.

The Almost Incredible Progress Made In Plastic Surgery Is A Boon To Wounded Servicemen

CANADIAN servicemen who have suffered facial wounds, head injuries and burns so terrible that they fought in the Great War must have died, or at best survived to live out a lonely, desperate sort of existence, are today, thanks to the almost incredible progress of plastic surgery, being returned to civilian life so marvelously repaired and healed that in most cases a stranger would be hard put to guess the nature of their original wounds.

"Plastic surgery," said an Army surgeon attached to one of the plastic surgery units of Canada's recently formed Joint Service Special Treatment Centres, "not so long ago confined to face-lifting or the straightening of an unattractive nose has, since the war, advanced to a point it would have taken perhaps 100 years to reach in terms of peacetime progress."

"So fast is new knowledge being acquired, in fact, that techniques we considered up to the minute eighteen months ago, have in many cases been so far surpassed as to be regarded now as obsolete."

So seemingly impossible to the layman's mind are some of the things being done by Canadian plastic surgeons, that even with the evidence before him, the unaided visitor is frequently tempted to pinch himself.

Behind this miracle of human salvage lies a chain of surgery which begins on the battlefronts and reaches its climax under the skilled fingers of Canadian plastic surgeons working in the superbly equipped operating theatres of Canada's Joint Service Special Treatment Centres, the first and largest of which was opened over a year ago at Christie Street Hospital, Toronto. Since then, two other Centres have gone into operation, one at Montreal Military Hospital, and another at Shugborough Hospital, Vancouver.

In setting up such Special Treatment Centres, to which are sent all soldiers, airmen, and men of the merchant marine in need of plastic surgery, the purpose was twofold. First, it has made it possible to gather together at these three key hospitals, selected teams of the finest plastic, neurologist and orthopaedic surgeons in Canada drawn not only from the three armed services, but from civilian sources as well.

Secondly, it has made it possible to concentrate all the available, highly specialized equipment used in such fields of surgery at three hospitals, instead of having to spread it out thinly among hospitals all over the Dominion. This intense concentration of surgical skill and equipment has given the Canadian serviceman in need of plastic surgery, facilities second to none in the world.

From surgical units in France and Italy, and from the sick-bays of Canadian ships at war, wounded servicemen requiring plastic surgery are sent first to the Canadian Army's big neurological and plastic surgery hospital at Basingstoke, England, now rated as the most modern and efficient plastic surgery centre in all of Great Britain.

At this great hospital a welding-out process takes place. Servicemen whose injuries are comparatively slight are given treatment on the spot and returned to active duty as soon as possible. Those whose wounds preclude continued service and are of such a nature that a major operation in plastic surgery will be necessary before they can be returned to civil life, are given initial treatment at Basingstoke and as soon as they have been nursed back to health are sent on to Canada.

On arrival, if their condition permits, they are taken to their military districts given 20 days leave and sent home. At the end of this time they report to one of the Special Treatment Centres and the exacting work of the plastic surgeon begins. Servicemen whose condition is so incapacitating as to demand immediate attention, or who are so mutilated that they prefer to postpone visiting home and friends until they "look better," are sent immediately to the plastic surgery unit of which the Centre is most convenient.

Surgeons in charge of the big plastic surgery unit at Christie Street Hospital and several in plastic surgery to the Director General of Medical Services in London. Colonel Stuart Gordon of Toronto, Ont.

In England with No. 15, Canadian General Hospital, in the early months of the war, Colonel Gordon was in charge of the unit. He is now in charge of the Canadian Army's first overseas plastic surgery unit, where he personally handled the first facial casualties to come back from Dieppe. In May, 1943, he was placed in charge of all plastic surgery at the newly formed and now famous Basingstoke Neurological and Plastic Surgery Hospital, at Basingstoke, England.

where he remained until August 18, 1944, when he was brought back to Canada to take over his present important post. Colonel Gordon is considered by his colleagues to be the most brilliant plastic surgeon in Canada today.

Good Old Days

Present Generation Apparently Do Not Know What They Have Missed

An excerpt from the Free Press files of 1909 will turn back the pages of time for many a reader of upper middle age. It tells the simple story of the sale of horses and vehicles by a London livery stable. But all that memories the simple story may recall. What memories of youth and high spirits and sentiment may be roused by mention of buggies, hacks, victorias, and high traps!

Times have changed. A generation has arisen which knows not the crack of leather, the rattle of wheels, the clatter of harness, the feel of the line along the lines, does not know the thrill of 10 miles an hour, nor miss the satisfaction of the slow jog homeward beneath the moon, with the lines wrapped round the whipstock.

Ah well! The youngsters just don't know what they missed; that's all. London Free Press.

The first sweaters were heavy dark blue jackets which were worn by participants in athletic contests before and after games.

Reserves Of Sodium Sulphate Existing In Western Canada Are Used Extensively In Industry

By Kenneth Laddell, In The C-B-L Oval
CRYSTAL-COVERED "halos" dotted across the Canadian prairies yield each year an unusual and valuable harvest of a widely used chemical compound, sodium sulphate. For years the people on the prairies called the places "stink holes". The white alkaline deposits not only gave off a strange odour, but in high winds they blew across the landscape like chalk. Then people began to find some value in these deposits and, as so often is the case, they found these values purely by accident.

A farmer, homesteading near Polo, Saskatchewan about the turn of the century, bought some Barred Rock hens, thinking they would bring in a little extra money. One day he was prowling along the shores of White Lake and happened to pick up some crystal-like deposits. He took the crystals home and mixed them with the chicken feed. His Barred Rocks ate the feed with disturbing results, for the crystals were crude Glauber's salt, used extensively as an aperient or purgative for cattle, horses and sheep.

Although the existence of natural deposits of sodium sulphate in Western Canada was well known more than 45 years ago, not until World War I was serious attention turned to these resources. The search for potash at that time led to the staking of claims on many of the salt lakes on the prairies. While they didn't find useful deposits of potash, this activity led to the discovery of large reserves of sodium compounds. Principally in the form of sulphates, geologists suggest that the source of the salts in the deposits of Western Canada is from the unconsolidated drift material which covers practically the whole of the western plains, circulating meteoric waters carrying calcium salts in solution release the sodium salts in the bentonite of the drift and these are in turn concentrated and deposited in the undrained lake basins in the surface deposits as found today. The meteoric waters which carry the salts into the basins may be surface drainage, seepage, or springs. There is no drainage outlet to these lakes and constant evaporation over the years has concentrated the weak solutions into the strong ones, an example of the work of nature's own laboratory.

Investigation of the deposits in White Lake was undertaken by Canada's Department of Mines during 1924 and it was estimated that approximately 19,700,000 tons of hydrous salts existed in the 1,860-acre lake, which is 10½ miles long with an average width of half a mile. The deposits vary in depth from three to seven feet with an occasional depth of from 10 to 14 feet. Today the expanse of snowy White Lake is the heart of a thriving industry with the plant of Midwest Chemicals Limited, absorbing thousands of tons of sodium sulphate each year. The bulk of this output is sold by the General Chemicals Division of Canadian Industries Limited.

Tens of thousands of tons of the dehydrated crystal, known to the trade as "salt cake," are required each year in the manufacture of kraft paper by the sulphate process, which was first introduced in Canada in 1907. The fibre obtained by the sulphate process possesses unusual strength and flexibility. Roughly speaking, 250 pounds of salt cake are required for each ton of sulphate pulp produced.

Canada's glass industry uses sodium sulphate to lower the melting point and viscosity of the liquid glass. Substantial tonnages of salt cake are used in the smelting of nickel and copper ores and in various branches of the chemical industry salt cake is an important ingredient.

Sodium sulphate, as it occurs in these deposits, is in the hydrous form of crude Glauber's salt which contains 50 per cent. water of crystallization or in solution as a brine. Since very little of the material can be marketed in either of these forms it is necessary to purify or dehydrate it before a marketable product is obtained.

The harvesting of sodium sulphate is simplicity in itself. The whole process is governed by rainfall and melting snow. The winter accumulating in undrained basins is often a foot or two in depth and carries a considerable quantity of the salts in solution.

In the late summer and especially in dry seasons the salt lakes become a huge deposit of crystallized salts. But when the seasonal rains or melting snows dissolve these crystals, the brine formed is pumped into a 23 acre reservoir where re-crystallization takes place. The almost 100 per cent. pure crystal is formed.

These deposits are harvested by modern methods, utilizing tractors with scrapers that look not unlike the bulldozers used for earth moving projects.

The finished dry salt is stored in a silo and shipped in bulk carlots as required by the trade. Canadian sodium sulphate is recognized as being a superior product because it contains virtually no free sulphuric acid or iron, and is not likely to form hard cakes or lumps during shipment or storage.

Looking like a huge snow drift, a stock pile of 150,000 cubic yards—representing 100,000 tons—of the raw deposit is generally maintained at the plant. The buildings, whitened by the blowing salt, look like something in a Christmas setting when viewed from afar against a blue prairie sky.

Midwest Chemicals Limited was organized in 1938 with Saskatchewan capital. Situated two miles from Polo, practically a whistle stop on the CNR, main line about 70 miles west of Saskatoon, the works is complete in itself, even to a school for children of the employees.

PLASTIC SURGERY—The photographs above illustrate some of the amazing work done by Canadian Army plastic surgeons. Top left: Lieut. Col. Stuart Gordon, surgeon-in-charge of the big plastic surgery unit at Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, and advisor in plastic surgery to the Director General of Medical Services, National Defence Headquarters, checks one of the thousand or more color photographs of patients, taken at various stages during their hospitalization.

Top right: A surgeon at Christie illustrates the method by which a patient's arm is used as a vehicle to carry living grafts or "pedicles," of skin from one part of the body to another. In this case a flap of skin has been raised from the patient's stomach and the severed end sewn to his wrist. Later, when it has grown firmly to his new location the other end of the pedicle will be cut away from the stomach and the hand with the pedicle dangling from the wrist, will be moved down and placed over the patient's upturned knee and the severed end of the pedicle sewn down immediately above a wound on the front of his leg. When the pedicle has adhered to the leg, it will be cut away from the wrist, opened up again into a flap, and turned down over the wound firmly sewn in place.

Center: Plastic casts of a Canadian officer's face, made before and after a plastic surgery operation, illustrate the perfect job made in repairing an upper lip badly mutilated by shrapnel.

Lower right: Canadian tank driver proudly exhibits his "new" hand. Not so long ago it was little more than a bony claw, with all the flesh burned away from the wrist down. Now it is completely "re-implanted" with healthy skin grafted from his stomach.

SOCIAL DIVIDEND

As we support our local merchant, so will our community prosper. We hear much these days of the social dollar, but have we not in some way been abusing our earnings to the detriment of our community, rather than supporting it?

We have often heard the saying that money is round to go round, is this not true? Like the pebble dropped in the pool, do we see the ever widening circles, or have we thrown it so far out that the ripples are beyond our vision?

Every unnecessary purchase made beyond our community prevents the local merchant or business man from paying the community what might be rightly termed the social dividend.

The true object of all business should be to serve the community in which it operates. Failing to do this, it cannot be successful. Local support enables your merchant to establish better credit relations with the outside market (credit—that which adds to our reputation), thereby strengthening his purchasing power and enabling him, in turn, to pass back to the consumer the benefits derived therefrom. Furthermore, a thriving community will make the opening of employment for its sons and daughters, truly paying the social dividend.

Price attraction often leads us to buy further afield, but the dividend from such purchases, if any, is like the ripple from the pebble dropped in mid-ocean, not detectable, the community deriving little or no benefit.

We must therefore decide whether the article so purchased at a lower price further afield is in reality cheaper or in the final analysis more costly. Let us think more seriously regarding our purchases, support more closely our local dealers, help them to expand and thereby enable them to pass on to the community the social dividend. Each and every one giving consideration one to the other will eliminate to a great extent the seeming need for political social dollars.

THE VICTORY LOAN

You and I—those of us who have been able to stay home during the war years—have a duty. That is, to buy bonds and put the Eighth Victory Loan over the top.

Let us pause and think for a moment. It may be true that we have been called upon to make a few minor sacrifices. It may be true that we have found it necessary to work harder than ever, owing to shortage of help and extra routine piled on by wartime restrictions and formalities. It may be true that we have accepted all these things as part of faithful service on the "Home Front." All credit for doing so. But at the best it is as nothing compared to what our boys on the fighting fronts have sacrificed. Having signed away their rights and liberties—even their very lives—in protection of the freedom we cherish, let us not overlook the fact that they have another fight ahead of them when they return home! The fight to find for themselves a place in civil life, and under the conditions which they have a right to expect.

The winding up of the fight in Europe and on the Eastern front, the bringing home of those in the Armed Forces, and finally the re-adjustment from Wartime to Peacetime will all require enormous expenditures by the Government. The furnishing of the money to meet these expenditures is part of your job and mine.

Victory Bonds will help to furnish the money, Buy Bonds.

HIDDEN LOGIC

Goodman Ace, of the radio's Easy Aces, was stopped on the street recently by Earl Benham, the tailor. "You haven't bought a suit in a long time," Benham reminded the radio star.

"Frankly, I can't afford $750 for a suit," Ace replied.

"$750?" Benham repeated in astonishment. "But you have never paid more than $150."

"In my tax bracket," Ace explained, "to keep $150, I have to earn $750."

Your Victory Loan Salesman Will Call on You Soon . . . Give Him a Friendly Welcome

Everybody knows what a comforting thing it is to have money where you can get it when you need it. So, in most homes, the Victory Loan salesman gets a cordial welcome. He offers an opportunity to you to help your country's war effort by just saving your money. In case of emergency you can get cash for your bonds at any bank . . . but you know that when you put savings into Victory Bonds they will likely stay there, intact . . . drawing good interest. Your savings are protected from your own temptation to use them. Buy all the Victory Bonds you can, with all the cash you have.

Buy More Victory Bonds on the Deferred Payment Plan With Money as You Get It!

And, to give yourself an objective to add to your savings, obligate yourself to buy more Victory Bonds on the deferred payment plan. Make a first payment of 10% or more when you order the bonds . . . and pay the balance with money as you get it, over a period of six months. Your Victory Loan salesman will give you a copy of the letter on the right. It is a request to your bank to buy bonds for you. Any bank will lend you the money to do this and the interest the bonds earn pays the interest on the bank loan.

THREE CENTURIES OF WHEAT

The growing of wheat in Canada can be traced back approximately 34 years to the summer of 1905, when a French settlement in the Maritimes cut the first crop. Today one of Canada's leading export commodities, Canada's wheat, was being exported as far back as 1794 to the tune of 80,000 bushels.

WORDS AND THE WAR

(By H.G.L. Strange)

There are certain words that might well be deleted from use by commentators in describing the advance of our troops. They are: Dashing, Sweeping, Plunging, Rushing, Racing. The truth is that very seldom, and never for long, does any advance warrant any of these words. "Old Soldiers" laugh when they read them. Advances by an army are never greater for long than the speed at which infantry can march and that is at the most twenty miles a day. Tanks and trucks can, it is true, go forward faster for a few hours, but then they have to stop for supplies and until the infantry catch up. Over-optimistic words and descriptions give a false impression to people. Such words make the people think that the war will be ended tomorrow and then many are inclined, because of this feeling, to slacken off their war efforts. War actually is a grim, tedious and slow business. Well trained troops such as the Germans can always put up a fight when they feel inclined to do so. The war will never be won until the enemy is disarmed and behind barbed wire, and no one knows how long that will take. In the meantime, we must continue to the end of the road, working and producing to the very best of our ability.

"P" COUPONS FOR CANNING

The prices board announced recently that "P" coupons in ration book No. 5 will be used for the purchase of preserves or sugar for canning after June 21 when the last of the preserves coupons (No. 57) on the orange-colored sheet and "P-1" on the yellow-colored sheet become valid.

The board said the use of the spare sheet of "P" coupons was necessary because 20 extra preserves coupons, each worth a half-pound of sugar or the regular value in preserves, are being made available this year for purchases of sugar for canning.

Preserves coupons 43 to 44 already have been declared available for this purpose. The other extras will be preserves coupons 49 to 56, valid May 19, and "P" coupons four to 13 valid July 19. The regular preserves coupons, two valid each month, also may be used for the purchase of either sugar or preserves.

ATHLONES TO VISIT ALBERTA

The Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice will leave Ottawa this week for a month-long tour of western Canada. It was considered possible this may be the Governor-General's last visit to the west before he and Princess Alice leave the Dominion at the end of the Earl's five year term as governor-general of Canada.

What every housewife should know...

about SUGAR FOR CANNING

For tasty, nourishing and economical winter desserts, most Canadian housewives will again do some preserving this year... jams, jellies and all kinds of fresh fruits. Sugar is still very scarce. We must continue to conserve our supplies.

This year, the allowance for home canning will be the same as in 1944—ten pounds per person. Be sure to use your ration sparingly.

HOW TO GET SUGAR FOR CANNING

Instead of special home canning sugar coupons, twenty extra preserves coupons in Ration Book No. 5 are being made available for the purchase of sugar for canning.

These coupons are good for half a pound of sugar each or the stated value in commercial preserves, for they are the same as any of your preserves coupons.

You may use any other valid preserves coupons to purchase sugar, also at half a pound each.

No exchange is necessary. Your grocer will accept any valid preserves coupons when you purchase sugar for canning.

There are now only two kinds of coupons for sugar. The regular sugar coupon, good for one pound of sugar, and the preserves coupon, worth half a pound of sugar.

Midget Carriers

British Merchant Ships, Equipped With Flight Decks

Several "midget aircraft carriers"—British merchant vessels equipped with flight decks—have been operating in the Atlantic since 1943, the admiralty disclosed in London.

The merchant aircraft carriers, unique in naval history, combine the functions of merchant and escort carriers.

Although the small planes which fly from "postage sized" flight decks have not been credited with any outstanding successes in battles against U-boats, they were said to have fulfilled their purpose in keeping the German submarines at bay.

Merchant sailing masters have come to regard the midget carriers as indispensable to their safety, the admiralty said.

They eliminated catapulted planes which, once airborne, could not return to their ships but had to be ditched at sea when they ran out of fuel resulting in a 100 per cent aircraft loss.

Knew Life Of People

Churchill Said Earl Lloyd George Was Champion Of Weak

Prime Minister Churchill paid tribute to the late Earl Lloyd George as "a champion of the weak and the poor" and as the greatest Welshman since the days of the Tudors.

"It was Lloyd George who hunched liberal and radical forces in this country effectively into a broad stream of social betterment and social security," Mr. Churchill said in the House of Commons.

"There was no man so gifted, so eloquent, so forceful who knew the life of the people so well."

Seed-Borne Diseases

Farmers Should Treat Their Seed For Control Of Disease

While many farmers clean their seed to eliminate weed seeds and other impurities, and also have it tested for germination and purity, there are many who neglect what is equally important, that is, to treat their seed with a recommended dust treatment to control seed-borne diseases, says G. A. Scott, Division of Biology & Plant Pathology, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Treatment of seed to control seed-borne diseases is an inexpensive means of crop insurance. The cost for seed of cereals is about three cents per bushel or 1½ cents per acre. Mercurial dusts such as Ceresan and Leptoson when properly applied, effectively control the smuts of oats, covered smut of barley but or stinking smut of wheat and certain blights and root rots commonly found in cereal crops.

Organic mercury dusts are poisonous to human beings and live stock. In applying them great care should be exercised to follow instructions as outlined on the container. Due to their easy application, effectiveness and stimulation to germination they are rapidly replacing the use of formalin. They will not control the loose smuts of wheat and barley. These smuts are not affected by the use of the ordinary seed treatments but can be controlled by the hot water treatment.

Arsenic, Semesan and Spergon are dusts recommended for the treatment of seed of certain vegetables and field roots.

All the seed treatment dusts can be bought from any seed dealer.

There is no doubt that the use of disease-free seed is one of the essentials to successful and profitable crop production, says Mr. Scott. It is an established fact that proper seed treatment will control certain seed-borne diseases and will protect the seed for a time at least from invasion of soil-borne organisms. If a farmer will treat his seed annually with a recommended preparation, it will prove the cheapest and most reliable investment he can make to protect his crop against serious loss from diseases.

Will Do Gardening

Over 1800 Farm Daughters Have Enrolled In Girls' Brigade

Farmers, as a rule, are the world's worst gardeners. The crop of corn must be put in first and when the garden needs cultivating or hoeing there is always some field crop that needs it still more. However, it looks like a solution coming up for more than 1,800 farm daughters have enrolled in the girls' garden brigade sponsored by the Department of Agriculture. When all these girls go into action and they are scattered throughout all the combined farm people will get a fill of good vegetables fresh from the garden, and they will realize how important a farm garden really is. Farmer's Advocate.

WHITER BREAD

Britain's bread will soon be whiter, and other foods more tasty. An order comes into force which brings about a decrease in the rate of extractions of national flour from 50 per cent to 82½ per cent. "This measure in due course will have the result of producing a whiter and better quality loaf with no appreciable loss of nutritional value," said Col. Alexander, minister of food, recently.

ROYAL ENSIGN FLIES IN GERMANY—Stoker T. W. Crane of the Royal Navy holds the flag over Germany. Naval landing craft were brought overland for the River Rhine crossing.

Cleared The Land

How Russian Women Removed German Mines From Farm Fields

Cultivating the land is not always a peaceful occupation. This is illustrated by the story from Russia of Anna Antsiferova. She is a member of a collective farm which during the German invasion of Russia was the scene of fierce fighting.

The farm girls, thickly mixed by the Germans had formed the approaches to the battlefield. When the battles rolled west from the Don the plowmen and sowers returned to the fields. But before they could restart their work they had to remove the mines. So Anna and her friends became sappers. They were trained and equipped by men of the Red Army.

Ten square miles of minefields were cleared without the aid of the charts. Anna herself lifted 1,420 mines. Another champion lifter, Alexander Neupokoyev, accounted for 1,880 more. Three other farmers between them dealt with 1,492 anti-tank and anti-infantry mines, 3,259 mortar mines, 17,442 unexploded artillery shells and 224 unexploded bombs. Leeds Yorkshire Post.

PLACING THE BLAME

A southern England food officer received a letter from a woman who wanted a change of butcher. "My husband has been breaking his teeth, and I think it must have something to do with the meat," she said.

Because it increases the blood flow, meat has a beneficial effect on many ailments.

Ship Provisions

Canadian Farmers Provide The Necessary Food For Our Seamen

Every ship that leaves a Canadian port, whether troop transport or liner, cargo boat or deep sea fishing vessel, is supplied with enough food for both the outward and the return voyage to Canada. Contrary to a general opinion that ships can store any quantity of food they like, and that therefore some shortages develop on the home market, the food supplies are provided on a strict man per day basis, and a careful accounting of all supplies stores is required if a ship returns to Canada before the expiry of the date of her last storing period. A review of the statement covering ships' supplies for 1944 shows that of a total value of about $16,000,000, by far the greater amount was for food.

So stringent is the accounting that the administration of ships' stores, knows that no goods sold for ships' stores are finding their way into the black market in other countries, and farmers of Canada should know that their contribution of food is probably the most indispensable to those who man the merchant ships and the convoys escorts on the high seas—the men on whom falls the responsibility of getting the soldiers and the troops to the battle fronts.

REG'LAR FELLERS—A Generous Giver

Good Man For Job

Colonel Melvin Purvis May Track Down Nazi War Criminals

To punish a Nazi war criminal it is first necessary to catch him, and it is becoming increasingly apparent that catching Nazi war criminals is going to have all the aspects of a major operation.

The Nazis can be expected to do everything possible to stay out of the clutches of the Allies. Already there are grounds for belief that more than a few of them have caused accounts of their "deaths" to be published, have taken other names and have gone underground. Many more can be relied upon to adopt similar tactics. With many German and Nazi records destroyed on purpose or by Allied bombs, detection of these characters is bound to be difficult.

In the circumstances there may be some truth in unconfirmed reports that Col. Melvin Purvis of the American Army has been assigned to head an international organization set up to track down Nazi war criminals now and after the war.

It is no more than common sense to establish such an organization. But the task is considerably more than the hanging of Hitler, Himmler, Goebbels, Goering and a few other outstanding Nazi leaders. Thousands of others are responsible also for the Nazi war crimes record and must be made to pay the penalty. It will take quite an organization to round them up. And if Col. Purvis is heading such an organization, there is little doubt that the job is in good hands. Col. Purvis is the former F.B.I. agent who captured John Dillinger, the notorious Indiana desperado of a decade ago. He has a reputation as a manhunter. All his talents will be needed in the manhunt he now is said to have begun.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

TEXTILE FIBRES

The Family Herald and Weekly Review says: The principal textile fibres are wool, cotton, silk, flax, and rayon. Wool is the oldest and goes back to prehistoric times. Cotton was produced nearly 4,000 years ago and linen from flax was known in Egypt at a still earlier date. Silk was produced in China over 5,000 years ago, while rayon, the baby textile, was first produced commercially only 60 years ago.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

SUCCESS

—By— LARRY STERN

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Stephan Dajew wasn't a family man. He'd been too busy being a success to give much thought to acquiring a wife. But his inherent love for children was nonetheless strong. That's why, though extremely weary after his long journey, he made no effort to disperse the group of curious youngsters whom his nephew had brought home with him after school. They swarmed him with questions.

"We was studying about the Balkans in our geography class. Did you really live there?"

"Do the kids differ from you, Mister?"

"Joe says you own a chemical factory; that must be fun. I got a chemistry set last Christmas; do you make them?"

"Joe says you're awfully rich, Mister. Are you?"

Patience and in stilted English, Uncle Steve answered all questions. All but the last: Was he rich?

His mind reverted to the days when he had been but little older than these energetic American children. Formal education already lay behind him. Ahead was work, first on a farm and then in a factory.

In the factory he did just about everything, from polishing dorknobs to preparing finished textiles for shipping. A workday for Stephan was often twelve hours, or even fourteen. Small wonder that he paid scant heed to international strife, to rumblings of political pandemonium. Stephan's aim was to make good. If he worked hard, honestly, success would be his.

And it was. Interested in dyes, he managed by saving over a long period of years to open his own establishment. Unsold products at fair prices plus a gift for making and keeping friends served as the platform on which he built a thriving business.

Then came the war, but except for local disturbances in the neighboring country, the Balkans seemed slated to remain at peace.

Vain hope. The little countries were but pawns in the maneuvering of a fanatic who forced upon them his unworkable "protection." Stephan's country regained territory previously lost to its neighbor. The more was calculated to make the populace look with favor upon the dictator, to pave the way for a pact which promised co-operation. Stephan, little versed in politics, voiced his opposition. "Our independence is goose-stepping toward oblivion," he predicted.

"Nonsense," scoffed one of his friends, a minor Government official. "That piece of land is but a fraction of what will be given us when our friend has conquered England. We will grow, become more independent than before."

"I have faith in my country, Karosi," Stephan affirmed, "but in fairy tales..." he shook his head.

A week later the same official waddled into Stephan's modest office. "You seem to be doing less business these days, my friend."

"Only because our great benefactor has played havoc with transportation. Not that my products are bulky."

"Stephan shrugged. "What troubles me is the necessity for discharging some of my employees."

"Transport facilities are at the disposal of those who ship essentials," Karosi enlightened. "Now if your firm were to manufacture..."

"Stephan stared. "I do believe you are serious?"

"I am. If you refuse to do as I suggest, your factory will be taken over by the Government. I speak as your friend, Stephan. It is wiser to comply."

Perhaps Stephan was not wise. When he realized that Karosi's words had been idle ones, he did an efficient job of destroying his factory.

Confronted by a suspicious Karosi, Stephan made no effort to deny his guilt. "I am admitting no indemnity; the loss is mine alone. Why, then, must I leave the country?"

"To avoid prison, you fool, or death. Even so you may encounter obstacles," Karosi thoughtfully scratched his puffy jaw. "I may be able to effect your escape. It will take money, of course, but when one's life is at stake mere money loses its value."

Stephan smiled thinly. That this was a new form of blackmail he never doubted. Still, what could he do? Karosi held the winning card.

After paying his "friend" for arranging things, Stephan had barely enough for his passage to America. The Atlantic crossing was made memorable by the rescue of a torpedoed freighter's crew. In the faces of the survivors Stephan read the reason for his act of arson. Could he have been expected to help him by the manufacture of explosives?

The thought was harrowing. Aboveboard in all things, Stephan lost no time confessing to his sister Mary and her husband his true situation. But it made no difference; he was welcome to share their comfortable home. Stephan thanked God that through the years he'd remembered the little family on birthdays and holidays. For now he came empty-handed.

Facing the eager youngsters, Stephan counted his assets. Residues in a country whose Government didn't make a mockery of that famous statue on Bell's Island; the comfort of being with people whose affection for him didn't decrease along with his fortune; and the opportunity to become what he wanted.

He had a gentle hand on the tattered head of his questioner and said solemnly, "I think I am truly rich, my boy."

GARDEN NOTES

Improved Models

In the old days there were only a few great varieties of vegetables and when these were finished the season was over for another year. That narrow choice does not apply any more. In most lines one can now get a good early variety, a good medium one and a good late one. True advantage alone extends the season by many weeks and it sowings of each type are spread over a few weeks instead of days the harvest of good eating is still further lengthened. And new vegetables have also been added. There are new squash, new melons, cucumbers, carrots and corn. One can get a bunch that will not ripen to seed quickly, lettuce that will stay crisp and green weeks later than the old types, radish that will be ready to eat days sooner. By careful planning and by wise succession planting, rather than sowing everything on one afternoon, one can have a harvest of garden from vegetables from early July until long after the first hard frosts.

And the same improvement has been going on in flowers. There are varieties that bloom earlier and scores of new shades. By choosing carefully one can easily have a continuous succession of bloom right through the season and one could if one wished work out any complicated color scheme desired. And in addition to colors there has been improvement in adapting certain types and varieties to certain conditions.

Early Tips

Newcomers are advised to order early. Canadian seedmen say there will be enough to go round if orders are placed early and only what is needed for this season is bought. Canada has now to depend entirely on its own production and what seed can be imported from the United States.

A good test to make sure that the soil is ready is simply to walk over the ground where one plans to plant. If the soil muddies the boots then it is too wet. If it shakes off readily or if it crumbles when squeezed in the hands and does not compact into a ball, then it is fit to work.

Experienced gardeners advise cultivating as thoroughly as possible before planting. The reason they emphasize this early slinging, especially in ground that has not been cultivated every year for some time, is to get rid of witch grass and other weeds. It is much easier to clean these pests out by the roots before the rows are planted and there is plenty of room to operate.

HAS HAD LONG REIGN

King Gustaf of Sweden has become his country's longest-reigning monarch. It is over 37 years since Gustav ascended the throne Dec. 8, 1907, to become Sweden's 21st monarch of modern times.

Lunch Box Magic

Are your lunch boxes mean-looking? Do they satisfy the appetites of hard working men, and energetic youngsters? You can be sure the lunch will be a hail and hearty one if you make generous sandwiches from this wholesome King Yeast Bread! Spread it generously with rich creamy peanut butter and you'll have a combination that's not only delicious but also highly nutritious!

Brain Yeast Bread

1 1/2 cups All-Bran
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 1/2 teaspoons shortening
1 cup molasses

Combine All Bran, boiling water, shortening, molasses and salt; let cool until lukewarm. Add yeast which has been softened in lukewarm water. Stir in flour and beat well. Put into greased bowl, turning several times until outside of dough is covered with this coating of fat. Let rise until double in bulk. Beat vigorously. Put into greased loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 1 hour. Ten minutes before removing loaves from oven brush tops with butter. Yield: Two 1 1/2-pound loaves.

International Incident

Visit Of The Emperor Of Abyssinia To President Roosevelt And Mr. Churchill

The Ethiopian Embassy has issued a rather curious statement on the visits recently paid by the Emperor of Abyssinia to President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill in Egypt. So far as the visit to the President was concerned, everything was perfect. This was made out the invitation of the President, who assigned to his Imperial Majesty an aide-de-camp and staff and special airplane for the occasion. After reading all this it is not surprising that "the Emperor was deeply impressed with the friendly and understanding attitude of the President and his Secretary of State." But what of Mr. Churchill? The British public will be relieved to hear that the Emperor found time to fit in a visit to him also. As the statement put it so nicely:

While still in Egypt as the guest of the President, the Emperor was pleased to accept the invitation of the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, to meet the Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, and to avail himself of this opportunity of discussing the mutual relations of the two countries. He afterwards returned to Addis Ababa in the airplane placed at his disposal by the American Government.

One is left wondering whether it was British hospitality or British imperialism which failed to please. The Emperor might have remembered, as Mr. Churchill said that "he was the first to have restored his ancient throne by the heavy exertions of our British and Indian armies in the far off days of 1900-41," but of course there was no special airplane. Perhaps that makes the difference. Manchester Guardian.

Small And Simple

Britain Has Produced Mobile Flour Mills For Liberated Europe

Mobile flour mills, each able to supply the needs of 50,000 people have been specially produced in Britain for liberated Europe.

The United Kingdom authorities evolved the idea of an emergency flour plant when the Allies first landed in Italy and realized that the need destroyed by the enemy could not be restored quickly enough to feed the people. Leading dietitians were consulted and it was decided that the best temporary solution was to provide means of producing locally and in decent quantities of well ground 100 per cent. wholemeal, which could be manufactured with simple equipment.

Despite their large output of 16 tons of wholemeal per hour, these mills are small and so simple that they can be operated by unskilled labor. Each mill is entirely self contained and mounted on skids so that it may be easily moved from place to place. It is equipped with enough spare parts for a year of continuous work, operating if necessary for 24 hours a day. St. Thomas Times Journal.

HOME FROM WAIRS

H.M.C.S. Conchona, one of the "gunboats" of the Royal Canadian Navy's Bangor class minesweepers, is home from the wars after 24 weeks of overseas service during which she helped clear a path through German minefields to the landing beaches of Normandy on D-day.

Devilish Ingenuity For Safety's Sake

In The Last War Germans Were Not Deficient In Setting Booby Traps

In this war, the Germans have used corpses and even desperately wounded, to which were wired deadly explosives as booby traps. In Italy a pretty Italian girl has been used, and in the Rhineland a very inviting armchair has been found with a mine under it. But veterans will recall that in the last war, the Huns were not deficient in diabolism.

The writer of the Fleet Street, London, Bureau of the Ottawa Journal recalls that one favorite one then was to arrange the wooden lamiate or rail of their dugouts, when they were clearing out, so that anyone descending the dugout and, as must be the case, resting his weight on the rail would instantly explode a hidden mine. Another gadget was to place a German battle helmet, always a prize souvenir with our Tommies, on a dugout table. Lift it, and the dugout went up.

But first prize for diabolical ingenuity was an endless number of hidden traps, to be awarded to a booby trap elaborately constructed in one of the French towns the Germans vacated before our advance in 1918.

When our troops marched into this small country town unopposed, they found much in ruins, but one edifice was in good repair. It was crowded with troops and, as there was a good piano, sing songs, very popular whilst the troops shined their thrust on French hook. Our warriors gathered round the pianist and sang lustily all the old war songs of 1914-18, from Mademoiselle d'Armentieres to Pack Up Your Troubles, which, incidentally, still seems the popular song of the Allies in this war.

This jollification went on for several days, until the moment came when the accompanist struck a certain combination of notes. Then there ensued a terrific detonation, and the edifice and the crowd inside it, were blown to pieces. This story is well authenticated. It illustrates a phase of German psychology that makes no appeal to many people. St. Catharines Standard.

Shoe Builder

Chicago Man Makes Shoes For Midget Feet

Huffard Kipling didn't have Jack Hoffard, shoe builder, in mind when he wrote the line, "Boots, boots, boots."

Hoffard doesn't need any literary exemplification of his work. It shows in 500 wooden duplicates of tiny midget feet stacked in neat racks at his store. He also has models of special size footwear for a circus gladiator 8 feet tall, and copies for another circus woman, whose shoes are as wide as they are long.

Twenty-five years ago the Chicagoan started designing shoes for midgets when he observed that children's shoes looked so out of proportion on the midget feet. He invented about $500 in miniature lasts. Now he claims to have every midget in the country as a customer. "I'll take a midget order quicker than one for regular size," he said. Whenever a midget needs a pair of shoes, he just sends me a picture of the style he wants, and it's made up in the last."

He got into the bigger shoe sizes by venturing from a firm promise not to take any shoe order than those for midgets. Now he has models for shoe average sizes, and "right" shoes with six-inch heels (which he is making to meet regulation). He still gets requests for the latter from puzzled women, but is an advocate of ballet slippers for the tall girl.

MUST BE FUMIGATED

Pan-American Airways officials report that thousands of delicate orchid blooms, air-expressed early from Venezuela, reach destinations in every part of the United States via Hoboken, N.J., the only place where the costly posies can be fumigated to specifications of the U.S. Bureau of Plant Quarantine.
